The Butterfly Ball is being supported by a leading Liverpool art gallery, Dot-Art. The city centre gallery has become renowned for supporting local artists. Director Lucy Byrne represents more than 80 of Merseyside's very best artistic talents.

Six of those artists have been generous enough to contribute works for the auction on 28th June in support of North West Cancer Research Fund. They include:

- Former fashion model-turned-photographer Stephanie de Leng. Waterloo-based Stephanie's striking work reflects a broad range of international topics.
- Having trained as a graphic designer, Carolyn Higgins turned to painting. She now combines her twin loves of art and gardening in delicate close-up studies of flowers and foliage.
- Photographer Ken Lewis has become well-known for portraits of some of Liverpool's iconic landmarks, including a series of stunning night-time images of the city's world-famous waterfront.
- Pam Usher has exhibited widely both at home and abroad, drawing rich praise for her watercolours featuring landscapes, portraits and still-life subjects.
- Keith Fearon has worked with some well-known figures in sport, TV - and on Merseyside beaches. As well as being the England cricket team's official artist and producing the official 'Coronation Street' 40th anniversary painting, he's created a best-selling study of Antony Gormley's installation 'Another Place'.
- Greg McDonough has founded his reputation on a string of successful exhibitions across Europe. His paintings embody the natural, using materials found in his local environment.
